

LOCAL MANAGER OF THE MAJESTIC

ceremoniously and Failed to Leave Any Address.

HERE ABOUT FOUR MONTHS

W. M. Eagleson Lessee of House
Here Straightening up Business.
New Local Manager.

J. C. Howell, who for the past four months has been local manager of the Majestic Theatre, left town rather unceremoniously Monday and failed to leave his address. His wife and child left over the B. & O. at two o'clock, their baggage being checked to Mitchell. Howell was seen in the city about noon and it is said he left town in an automobile but his destination has not been learned. It is supposed he had made arrangements to join his wife at some designated point.

Howell left a number of unpaid bills in the city among the merchants and there are also some unpaid theatre bills. The latter will be settled by W. M. Eagleson of Charleston, Ill., who has the house leased.

He is in the city and will remain the remainder of the week to straighten up affairs and arranging for the continuance of the business under a new local manager, John Howard of Alton, Ill. Mr. Eagleson is unable to say yet just how much he is out as he states that he had never been able to get a full settlement with Howell. Howell came here from Chicago after Mr. Eagleson secured the lease and apparently was familiar with the theatrical business. The house seemed to be doing a very good business but Mr. Eagleson states he had never received any share of the revenues. He was here two weeks ago and says he failed to secure a satisfactory statement and was also dissatisfied with Howell's manner of conducting part of the business and with his not paying all bills promptly. He returned to Seymour Saturday evening and was endeavoring to secure a complete adjustment of the business. Monday forenoon Howell left him on some pretext and that was the last seen of him. The Howells roomed at M.F. Bottorff's. They settled their bill there, Mr. Bottorff declining to let their baggage be removed before settlement was made.

Mr. Eagleson found a small bank balance but outstanding claims considerably in excess of it. These claims will be settled, a new picture machine put in, Howell having taken the one in use, and other arrangements made to conduct the house in a high class manner the remainder of the season. It is being thoroughly cleaned and care will be taken that a first class corps of assistants are employed. The moving pictures will be started again the first of next week and only the best of pictures will be shown. The Farmers Institute will have the house Friday and Saturday night. One of the best attractions on the road "The House of a Thousand Candles" will be presented. Some splendid attractions have been looked for the remainder of the season. Mr. Eagleson has a circuit of first class houses and is an experienced man well known in the theatrical business and proposes to give Seymour a first class show house. He desires the confidence and good will of the community and will give the local business careful attention. The new local manager is an experienced man. He sang at the Majestic at a performance some time ago. Howell, the recent manager, lived in Chicago before coming to Seymour. While here he was energetic and made friends and his action and manner of leaving is regretted.

INJURED BY FALL
Francis Gardner Hurt While Loading
Car of Logs.

Francis Gardner, an employe at D'Heur & Swain's Lumber yards, was injured this morning by falling from the top of a car of logs which he was assisting in loading. He was walking on one of the logs when he lost his balance, and fell heavily to the ground falling on his head and side.

A physician was called and upon examination it was found that he suffered two broken ribs, and was otherwise injured about the head and body. While his injuries are not regarded as serious they are very painful and it will be several days before he will be able to resume his work again.

No Assurance Given Mayor Knott.
Thomas M. Honan, who Monday succeeded James Bingham as attorney-general, denied that any assurance had been given him to Mayor Knott, of Gary, that by the petition for writ of mandate compelling Knott to send certain "blind tiger" keepers to jail, filed by Bingham, would be withdrawn.

"I do not know anything about the cases," said Mr. Honan. "Mr. Knott has received no such assurance from me."

A report from Gary was to the effect that Knott had declared that the new attorney-general would withdraw the petition for writ.

A New Year—A New Rule.
Under the new law all recorder fees belong to the county, and no instrument will be put on record unless accompanied by the fee.

When asking for descriptions of land enclose postage stamps and give the name of the parties to whom the inquiry is asked. PROHIBITIONISTS OPEN OFFICE HERE

J. Raymond Schmidt In Charge of Southern Indiana Work Establishes Headquarters.

HE COMES FROM POSEY COUNTY

His District Comprises Thirty Counties.—Jackson County Convention Dated for January 12.

Seymour is to be made a central point in the operations of the Prohibition party. The city is to become headquarters for a district composed of thirty Southern Indiana counties.

J. Raymond Schmidt of Posey county is to be in charge of the district. He has arrived in Seymour and has opened offices in the rear part of the second floor over the Jackson jewelry store on Second St.

In the past the state chairman has had entire charge of the work in the state but under a new plan of organization the state has been divided into three districts. A man will be in charge of thirty counties in Northern Indiana, Mr. Schmidt the southern part while the state chairman will have the central section and general supervision of the entire work.

Mr. Schmidt expects to send out a large amount of literature from the local office and will have charge of the county organizations and will make numerous speeches.

Arrangements have been made for a county convention in Seymour Jan. 12 at the Armory Hall. There will be afternoon and night sessions and State Chairman Long will speak at both and a new county organization will be formed.

At present F. H. Hadley is acting county chairman, the regular chairman having resigned several months ago.

FLINN TOWNSHIP
In Eastern Lawrence County Is No More.

Flinn township in Lawrence county which adjoined western Jackson county is no more. It passed out of existence at midnight Saturday night being annexed to other townships and the former officials are now out of jobs.

The wiping out of the township ends a long political strife in the township. The majority of the property holders were anxious for the action finally taken. The expense of operating the business of the township was large and was considered an unnecessary burden.

City Council Meets in First Session
For the New Year.—Two Ordinances Are Passed.

The city council held its first meeting of the new year last night according to the law which requires that the council shall meet the first Monday night in January. Following the resolution adopted by the council last year, the meetings will be as usual on each alternate Thursday evening. In the absence of Mayor Swope, councilman Mills was selected as chairman. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Councilman Davison reported that he had examined the automobile factory and found that it was in need of painting, and that one painter had agreed to do the work for $50. Upon motion of Sherman Day, Councilman Davison was given further time to investigate the cost of the painting, and if necessary to receive bids upon the work.

The annual report of Mayor Swope was presented. He reported that during 1910 a total of 177 cases had been tried before him. Out of that number 156 of the defendants had been convicted, 13 acquitted, and 8 bound over to the circuit court. Out of the 156 convictions 38 were committed to the county jail. The Mayor reported that he had paid to the city treasurer a total sum of $388. Upon motion of Councilman Davison, the report was referred to the finance committee.

Upon the call for ordinances for third reading, Councilman Davison presented an amendment to the ordinances providing that any person, firm or corporation, desiring to use the public streets for moving houses or storing materials to be used in repairing buildings, sidewalks, etc. shall secure a permit and give an indemnifying bond before such work be done. The amendment embodied practically the same provisions found in the original ordinance, but added that a license be also required for placing gravel upon the streets. Contractors or other persons who use the streets for the purposes mentioned in the ordinance, are not required to secure a license when the streets are used for a reasonable time. The ordinance was adopted as amended.

Councilman Davison also offered an amendment to the dog license ordinance, which was read upon third reading, providing for a few minor changes. The amendment provided that the license shall be paid before March 1, and that it shall be unlawful for any female dog to run at large. The ordinance was adopted as amended.

As the meeting was the regular time to receive bids from public depositories for the keeping of public funds, the council adjourned into a finance committee to consider the bids received.

Bids were received from the Seymour National Bank, the First National Bank and the Jackson County Loan and Trust Company, and were the same as follows: 2 per cent. on daily deposits; 2½ per cent. for semi annual deposits, and 3 per cent. on annual deposits. The Seymour National asked for $3,000 and offered a surety bond for $1,500 according to the depository law. The First National Bank asked for the same amount and the Jackson County Loan and Trust Company for $5,000. The latter banks did not file bonds but will do so in five days. According to the depository law of 1909 banks are required to file surety bonds for one-half the amounts asked for, and personal bonds for sixty per cent. of the amounts. The bond of the Seymour National Bank was accepted upon motion of Councilman Davison. The proposal of all the banks were accepted.

After the session reconvened at the council, Davison moved that the city engineer measure Ewing street from the B. & O. S-W. track to corporation, and Chestnut and Walnut street from south corporation line to north corporation line. The engineer was also instructed to estimate the excavation in order to make the streets the level of the established grade of the curb. This work is preliminary to the street improvement which the council contemplates to order done this spring.

HAYS CASE SETTLED
Contest Between Heirs Regarding Construction of Will.

The case of John Thomas Hays, et al. against James Otis Hays, et al. regarding the construction of the will of their grandfather, J. C. Richards, involving the title of real estate has been settled after many months of contest. The plaintiffs in the case contended that according to the terms of the will the defendants were entitled to one-sixth interest of the real estate, while the defendants believed they should have one-half interest. The case was tried here, and the court held for the plaintiffs. Later the case was venue to the Bartholomew circuit court where the decision was again given in favor of the plaintiffs.

After the construction of the will was settled, the defendants, who have been in possession of the land, purchased the interest of the plaintiffs for $3,700.

DELICATE CHILDREN
Made Strong and Healthy by Vinol.

"I wish I could induce every mother who has a delicate, sickly child, to try your delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol."

"It restored our little daughter to health and strength after everything else had failed. It tastes so good she loved to take it—not a bit of cod liver oil taste.—Mrs. C. W. Stump, Canton, Ohio." (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

The reason Vinol is so successful in building up puny, delicate, ailing children is because it is a combination of the two most world-famed tonics,—the medicinal body building elements of cod liver oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron. It contains no oil, and children love to take it and it cannot harm the most delicate child.

If we can induce you to try a bottle of Vinol as a body-builder and strength creator for your child, and you do not find it is all we claim, we will return your money on demand. Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

PLANS PROPOSED FOR SECOND COUNT

Several Business and Professional Men Proffer Services In Taking Recount of Population.

ASSURED MISTAKE WAS MADE.

Suggested That One Resident In Each
Block Take Census of That Square.

Since the census report has been received a large number of citizens who are fully convinced that the official count is incorrect have stated that they are in favor of a recount, and several plans have been proposed by which a more accurate count might be taken without cost to the city. While the census department might not recognize a recount even though a gross error might be shown, the citizens would have the satisfaction of knowing the exact gain which has been made over the census of 1900.

One of the several plans which have been proposed is to call a mass meeting of the citizens and assign one man to each block and hold him responsible for the correct census of that block. It has been suggested that a resident of the block be appointed to take the enumeration, and in this way he would know whether or not the census is correct.

If such a plan as this was adopted a certain day would be set upon which the complete enumeration would be taken, and it would not require but a few hours to take the census even in the largest blocks. After the census was taken, the returns would then be taken to one place where the total count would be made. It is not believed that any difficulty would be encountered in taking this census as a number of prominent citizens have stated that they would be willing to assist in any way they can.

According to another plan the city could be divided into the fire districts and each division be assigned to an enumerator. Several attorneys in the city have stated that they would be willing to assist in the work, and would give their services free of charge. If this plan was adopted a longer period of time would be required to complete the census as fewer men would be engaged upon the work and their districts would cover more territory.

It is estimated that the last census should have shown a population at least of over 7,500, and many persons were estimating it at a higher number. Every indication would point to a substantial gain in population over 1900 and that fact that a loss is shown is evidence that a great mistake has been made.

At Washington and a number of other cities in southern Indiana where a loss in population was shown the citizens have decided to order a recount and plans have been devised to take the census in the most advantageous manner.

BEVERIDGE MAKES KEYNOTE SPEECH

Senator Opens the Campaign in Indiana by Addressing Great Crowd.

LABORING MEN INTERESTED

Will Disregard Professional Leaders and Support Republican Ticket—Conference of Taggart, Fleming and Kern Bodes Ill for County Option.

Indianapolis.—The opening of the Republican campaign at Indianapolis by Senator Albert J. Beveridge has left nothing to be desired by the members of the party who are greatly interested in the success of the ticket. This is also true of an enormous number of people who are interested in Senator Beveridge and in what the party is standing for in this contest. Senator Beveridge, as was expected, was greeted by a very large audience when he spoke in Tomlinson Hall Tuesday night. At that time he made his keynote speech of the campaign and it is regarded as one of the best that he has delivered in many years. Senator Beveridge did not differ from the attitude taken in his state convention speech last April. He elaborated on a number of very material points that he made at that time. Judging from the enthusiasm with which his speech was received everything he said went right home. Never did Senator Beveridge receive a greater ovation than at Tomlinson Hall, and the applause seemed to be the kind that came right from the heart.

As evidence of the kind of a fight that Senator Beveridge expects to make this year, he delivers nine speeches this week.

Intense Interest in Campaign. Senator Beveridge is spending practically all of this week in the Fourth congressional district. He opened the campaign at North Vernon for Republicans of Jennings and neighboring counties. It is interesting to note that there and at other points where he has appeared the interest has been intense and the attendance very large considering the fact that the campaign is just being opened.

At Republican state headquarters it was not anticipated that the meeting during the earlier part of the campaign would be very well attended. In other campaigns it has taken considerable time to get the masses sufficiently interested to go out to listen to political speeches, but this year it seems that an entirely different situation prevails.

The conclusion reached already as a result of the meetings at Indianapolis and North Vernon and at Attica where Senator Beveridge spoke on Wednesday, is that the people are ready for the kind of a campaign that he and the other Republicans are intending to make and that from this on conditions will grow even more favorable to the success of Republican principles and the Republican nominees.

Senator Beveridge delivered a speech Wednesday night at the meeting of the State Federation of Labor where he was received with great enthusiasm. Reports have been coming in here for a good while indicating that the laboring men are showing very deep interest in the present campaign and especially in the attitude of Senator Beveridge and the party leaders. The Republican platform seems to have appealed strongly to the laboring classes because of their belief that it represents their interests. In fact, no other class is as deeply interested probably in the efforts that are being made to reduce the cost of living and bring commodities of all sorts within their reach.

Laboring Men for Beveridge. Chairman Jackson of the Democratic state committee tries to laugh off the reports that the Republicans are going to get thousands of votes from the laboring men who ordinarily would not support the Republican ticket. Jackson says there are more labor leaders helping the Democrats than there are helping the Republicans. This statement of Jackson's may be the truth. In fact, some newspaper men who have made a careful investigation of the situation say that the peculiar feature is that the so-called professional labor leader is not the one that is most deeply interested in the success of Senator Beveridge and the Republican ticket.

This fact is of great significance because it means that the labor rank and file has been considering the political situation and has arrived at its own conclusions without the assistance of any of the professional leaders who have been in the habit in years gone by of trying to tell the voters just how to vote.

This condition means that thousands of laboring men, regardless of their party affiliation, are going to stand by the Republicans because they approve thoroughly the principles that are being advocated by Senator Beveridge and his associates in the management of the campaign. Indeed, it is one of the most gratifying features of the situation and it undoubtedly means that whatever losses may be sustained because of the new theories that are being advocated more than likely will be offset by the additional strength that comes from the labor masses.

It is especially pleasing to Senator Beveridge and to the Republican leaders that their attitude and the platform should appeal to the laboring men, as the Republican party has always stood for the protection of their interests and is doing so this year, notwithstanding the statements of certain old-time leaders who have not been in complete sympathy with the management of affairs up to this time.

Taggart Bobs Up Again.

The past week has been notable for the reappearance in politics of that "peerless leader" of the Democrats, Thomas Taggart of French Lick. Taggart has not been in the game very much since Governor Marshall defeated him at the state convention here two months ago. In fact, some of the Democratic papers have been trying to show that Taggart had dropped entirely out and that he would not figure in this campaign as he has in others. Taggart, however, is very much in the game and will continue to be there until the election is over.

He was at a notable conference of Democratic leaders here this week at which the political situation was discussed very thoroughly. Among those present were John Kern, who was Taggart's candidate for the senate in the state convention which nominated him, and Stephen B. Fleming of Fort Wayne. Senator Fleming is president and general manager of the state association of brewers which is conducting a campaign from one end of the state to the other to bring about the repeal of the county local option law. Senator Fleming is a Democrat and was a bitter enemy of Kern's. At the last session of the legislature he was active in forming the organization that brought about the defeat of Kern for the United States senate.

It may seem rather unusual that at this interesting stage of the game Mr. Kern should be in conference with his old-time enemy, Senator Stephen Fleming, who, as already stated, has no other interest in the campaign but to bring about the repeal of the county local option law which is odious to him and his associates because it has wiped out hundreds of saloons in Indiana.

Why Is Fleming for Kern?

It should be remarked here before this matter is passed by that only a few days ago Senator Fleming, in order to relieve the anxiety of Mr. Kern's ardent followers, issued a statement to the public in which he declared that he would vote for Mr. Kern for United States senator and will do whatever he can to bring about his election. It is understood that Senator Fleming intended to convey the impression to the temperance Democrats throughout the state who happened to be favorable to Kern that the brewers are not making any fight on him and that a truce has been made by which the brewers will not attempt to interfere with Mr. Kern should the legislature be Democratic.

However, it is rather significant that neither Mr. Kern, Mr. Taggart nor Mr. Fleming has stated to the public just why the last-named should change his attitude with regard to Mr. Kern. Those who know Senator Fleming say that he very seldom changes front when he starts down the line against any political proposition or any party leader. Therefore there is considerable speculation as to how it happens that he has changed front on Mr. Kern.

Senator Fleming has never affiliated in politics with Taggart and the fact that he has been in conference with him here now is also an interesting phase of the situation. The question naturally arises as to whether or not there has been any deal framed up by which the brewers are going to "lay down" if the Democratic organization, including Mr. Kern, will let them alone during the rest of the campaign. While there have been no developments that would settle this matter without a public statement of some kind from those who participated in the conference, yet the impression prevails that something is going on among the Democratic leaders that bodes ill for the future of the county local option law.

In spite of the claims of the Democrats that perfect harmony exists among them, they are having a great deal of difficulty in explaining how it happened that St. Joseph county, the home of Senator Benjamin F. Shively, refused to indorse the candidacy of Kern for the United States senate. A resolution was introduced at South Bend to have Mr. Kern indorsed, but Senator Shively's friends in the Democratic convention kicked it out. The conclusion was that Mr. Shively's friends are not at heart for Mr. Kern and that while the senator may make speeches during the campaign in which he will appeal to the Democrats to stand up for Mr. Kern, his following will be pulling the other way.

Chairman Lee of the Republican state committee has announced that Colonel Roosevelt not only will speak in Indianapolis October 13 but will deliver eight short speeches in the state on that day. Owing to the intense interest shown in the coming of Colonel Roosevelt it is believed that he will be heard by at least 200,000 people as he makes his tour across Indiana. In hopes of offsetting the effect of Colonel Roosevelt's tour, the Democrats have arranged for William J. Bryan to come into Indiana on October 15 and to spend five days making two or three speeches a day in behalf of Kern and the rest of the ticket. However, in view of the fact that Mr. Bryan repudiated the Democratic ticket in Nebraska last week because it stands opposed to county local option, it is very difficult to understand how he can speak consistently for the Democrats of Indiana whose platform advocates the repeal of the county local option law by substituting local option by cities and towns.

HERE IS THE ISSUE

PARTY DIFFERENCES SQUARELY STATED.

Democrats Openly Working for Free Trade, Republicans Favor Protection—Ex-President Roosevelt Plainly States Case.

The New York Evening Post prints daily a symposium from representative Democrats on the sort of man the Democratic party needs for a leader and what his ideas and ideals should be. These expressions of opinion are important as evidencing the trend of the Democratic mind and are worthy of more than passing notice. It is urged that the leader of the Democracy should be "a man who looks forward impatiently to a revenue tariff, not as a finality," but as a step only in the direction of absolute free trade.

From the above it is evident that those Republicans who have a notion that the hankering for free trade does not still lurk in the Democratic mind need to revise their estimates. The necessity for united action on the part of Republicans is apparent. "This country," said former President Roosevelt at Sioux Falls, "is fully committed to the principle of protection." The Democrats, however, are not committed to the principle of protection, and they have not given up the fight, but are still propagating their free trade theories. In the Democratic symposium in the New York Evening Post it is argued that "the Democratic party must not take the field with any other less drastic end in view than the ultimate conversion of all our customs houses into warehouses, and making all our ports from Tampa bay to the Yukon as free to the commerce of the world as to our own shipping."

That sounds like a paraphrase of Democratic Leader Champ Clark's declaration that he is a free trader and glories in it; that if he had his way he would tear down every United States custom house from turret to foundation, stone. The desire to get something cheap no matter what the effect is on wages, seems to be the dominating thought in the Democratic mind. It is not so with the Republican. He argues for a higher civilization, for the betterment of the condition of the farmer, the merchant, the manufacturer, the laboring man—of every citizen of the republic. His party stands where it always stood—against the lowering of the American standard of living. The pronouncement in the last Republican platform that the aim and purpose of the Republican policy is "not only to preserve, without excessive duties, that security against foreign competition to which American manufacturers, farmers and producers are entitled, but also to maintain the high standard of living of the wage earners of this country, who are the most direct beneficiaries of the protective system," is not Democratic doctrine, but it is Republican doctrine, and if the protective system is to be maintained it will be maintained by Republicans. Former President Roosevelt, in his Sioux Falls speech, stated the position of the Republican party in other words as follows:

"The American public wants the laboring man put on an equality with other citizens, so that he shall have the ability of living and the capacity to enjoy it; and to do this we must see that his wages are not lowered by improper competition with inferior wage workers abroad—with wage workers who are paid poorly and who live as no Americans are willing to live."

Tariff Commission Idea.

The Democrats have not a leg to stand upon in their clamor against the tariff and their iteration of the assertion that the high cost of living is due to the failure of the Republicans to meet the expectations of the people. Taking from them the specious ground for such a plea, and at the same time declaring for a further revision of the tariff for its perfecting, would be a masterful piece of political action. The tariff as it exists is a general scheme. President Taft would likely advocate taking up the schedules as fast as the data may be gathered by the tariff commission in order to recommend such changes as the figures and facts may warrant. This kind of progressive legislation upon a subject whose bearing upon the weal of the people is constantly changing will be regarded by the business interests as the most sane and advanced attitude yet assumed in regard to the principal topic of domestic legislation.

A Strong Presentation.

The administration's case is presented strongly. There have been achievements—actual achievements—in the direction of progress. Whether the country in this period of unrest and faultfinding will pause and rightly appraise these achievements remains to be seen. Probably not. But they are of record, cannot be blotted out, and will be properly appraised by a dispassionate people some time, if not now.—Washington Herald.

Farmers and Protection.

American farmers have prospered more through the protective policy than any other class. It is to the protective policy that they owe the big domestic market in which they are now selling their products at a profit instead of parting with them at a loss as they were compelled to do when they were obliged to ship their surplus to foreign countries.—San Francisco Chronicle.

WILL NOT FOOL THE FARMER

Democratic Advice Vainly Offered to Those Who Remember Years of '93 to '97.

"Production hasn't kept pace with the increase in population," "There's been a shortage in the crop," "Protection has no relation to prices which the farmer receives for his crops," are some of the explanations offered by our Democratic friends to the American farmer to induce him to abandon protection and embrace free trade. In this connection some figures issued by the government are exceedingly interesting.

The preliminary rough estimate of 90,000,000 for the whole country's population in 1910, compared with the 75,693,734 of the 1900 census shows the ratio of increase to be 19 per cent.

The average annual wheat yield from 1900 to 1909 inclusive was 630,000,000 bushels, whereas the annual average from 1890 to 1899 inclusive was 503,000,000. This was an increase of 30 per cent.

The average annual cotton yield from 1900 to 1909 inclusive was 11,600,000 bales; the average from 1890 to 1899 inclusive, 8,700,000—an increase of 33 per cent.

In view of the fact that production has kept up so good a relative pace to population, why the better prices which the American farmer and cotton planter have been getting for their wheat and cotton, as compared with the prices they received from 1890 to 1899? Why diminished exports and why the talk of scarcity? The New York Evening Post gives an answer to the question:

"In the very prosperous decade just behind us," says the Post, "the average individual consumed more grain and bought more clothing than in the not so prosperous decade of the later nineties."

"The very prosperous decade just behind us" was a protective period; the ten years before that felt the blight of the Democratic Wilson tariff law. Under protection "the average individual consumed more grain and bought more clothing" because he was employed; because Republican legislation had made possible profitable enterprise; because the wheels of industry were in motion and men had earnings to spend. Shut up the shops, buy abroad instead of at home, turn American workmen into the street; in short, go back to Democratic free trade and the demand for what the American farmer and cotton planter have to sell will be so curtailed as to bring upon them again the previous torment inflicted by the last years of Democratic rule in the United States. This would be to follow the advice of the latest Democratic campaign document, which cites the example of England's sixty years' free trade experience and tells us to "remove the obstruction (protection), allowing prices to sink to their natural level." No farmer who lived through the awful years of '93 to '97 will heed such advice as that.

The Truth Will Win.

It may be inappropriate for me to invite your attention, and that of all those engaged in advocating the Republican cause in the coming election, to the fact that it is of the utmost importance to make this a campaign of education as to facts and to clear away the clouds of misrepresentation that have obscured the real issues and have made it difficult to secure for the Republican majority in congress the real credit due them from the country for the tremendous task they have accomplished. If this is brought clearly home to all voters, and especially to the young men now voting for the first time, and they become impressed, as they ought to be by this record, with the difference in the governmental efficiency and capacity of the Republican and Democratic parties, they will enroll themselves with the party of construction and progress rather than with the party of obstruction and negation, and the resulting legislation of the Sixty-second congress will vindicate their choice.—President William H. Taft.

Taft's Excellent Commission.

The great care taken by Mr. Taft in choosing the members of the stock and bond commission which is to investigate the question of placing the issue of railroad securities under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission is shown in the character of the men finally named. As experts they are all exceptionally qualified for the work assigned to them.

By wholly disregarding political considerations and all other ends except an impartial inquiry, Mr. Taft should succeed in disarming much of the hostility that has been evinced in interested quarters to an investigation of this nature. He has given assurance that the matter is to be treated by methods as nearly scientific as such a subject can be treated.—New York World.

Made Clear and Convincing.

The address of the president before the National Conservation congress at St. Paul is a state paper of consequence. It defines admirably the policy of conservation, illustrates the application to the several natural resources, describes present physical conditions and the operation of existing law and makes suggestions for improvements of both these latter. It has been said that Mr. Taft at Beverly was devoting much time and thought to the preparation of this address. The result is a document instructive on the subject, clear and convincing as to the president's attitude toward it.—Providence Journal.

USED HYPODERMICS.

Only Relief From Terrible Suffering.

Thomas E. Vest, 1505 S. 12th St., Terre Haute, Ind., says: "I had no control over the urine and the pain when voiding it was so great I often screamed. I grew worse and lay in bed for weeks, the only relief being from hypodermics. I was treated by three physicians without help and the last one said an operation was necessary. At this time I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and passed a gravel stone as large as a pea. The next day I passed two more and from then on improved rapidly until cured." Remember the name—Doan's. Which Do You Like Worst? This is the greatest known way for undecided people to make up their minds.

None but a strong-minded woman can ever decide which of two or three hats she likes "the best," particularly if they are all comely.

Popular belles have been known to have similar troubles with their sweethearts. Which do I like best is often a momentous question.

Why not try the other way? Decide which, of men, or hats, or attractive "dates" you like the worst, and then proceed to eliminate.

From there you can factor out in the grade of desirability, until you actually find yourself at a decision, because it, whatever it is, is the only one left.

The process is delightfully simple.

Science and Cheese.

A medical authority kindly assures us that as long as cheese isn't decayed it will not affect the health of the consumer. This is a fact that we have suspected for a considerable time. But how is the ordinary cheese epicure to detect the difference—unless he waits for results?

There is cheese so thoroughly disguised in the costume and aroma of decay that its proper standing on the sanitary testing table would puzzle a conjuror.

For instance, there is the brand known as Limburger. But why pursue this subject?

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed and has a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Not on Your Life.

An Irishman obtained a position in a skyscraper that was being built. He had to carry mortar up to the top floor. One day he went up and couldn't find his way down. The boss missed him and called up to him:

"Pat," said the boss, "why don't you come down?"

"I don't know the way," said Pat. "Well, come down the way you went up."

"Faith, and I won't," said Pat, "for I came up head first."

Even the Children.

Ex-Governor Pennypacker, condemning in his witty way the American divorce evil, told at a Philadelphia luncheon an appropriate story.

"Even our children," he said, "are becoming infected. A Kensington schoolteacher, examining a little girl in grammar, said:

"What is the future of love?" "A divorce," the child answered promptly."

The KITCHEN CABINET

TO INSURE good digestion, exercise daily in the open air, eat an abundance of fruit and drink pure water freely between meals. Plain, simple foods, as direct as possible from fields, orchards and woods, should always be our aim.

Planning for a Small Family.

When catering for a small family, care, judgment and economy must be used or one kind of food must be served several times in order to avoid waste.

When purchasing utensils and dishes for cooking, choose the size most suitable to the size of the family, as such an investment has a great advantage even in serving leftovers.

In buying a roast, too small a one dries out in cooking and is not an economical purchase. The beef left over may be served in slices heated in a Mexican sauce, tomato, or horseradish sauce. The little bits too small to serve may be chopped and seasoned, then used as sandwich filling, or one can always have hash.

Bits of leftover vegetable like carrot, beans or corn, may be added to a salad greatly to its advantage.

Eggs contain no waste and add to the nutriment of a dish. When making an omelet if a few peas are at hand fold them in at the last or serve in a sauce poured around an omelet.

Very tempting desserts may be made from stale cake cut in rounds or fancy shapes, a preserved pear or peach, with a little of the syrup and whipped cream served on each piece.

For a small family one can make so many attractive little dishes that would be entirely out of the question with a larger family.

When using gas a small portable oven to be used over a burner is a great saving.

A delicious dessert which is both pleasing to the eye and the palate is prepared by beating together a half cup of any favorite jelly and the white of one egg. It will take a little time to beat until it stands alone, but the result will repay the effort. Serve in sherbet cups with sweetened whipped cream on top. A change from the usual French toast may be made by cutting the bread in rounds or in some fancy shape, dip in egg and milk and fry in butter as usual. Often a dish refused many times will be welcomed if the appearance is changed. It is necessary in all successful cooking to appeal first to the eye.

RESOLVED to live with all my might while I do live. Resolved, never to lose one moment of time, but improve it in the most profitable way I possibly can. Resolved, never to do any thing which I should despise or think meanly of in another. Resolved, never to do any thing out of revenge. Resolved, never to do any thing which I should be afraid to do if it were the last hour of my life.

—Jonathan Edwards.

Leaks That Sink the Household Ship
Meat is the most costly and extravagant of all articles of food. Consequently every bit should be saved and worked over.

The cheaper cuts of meat make the best soups and stews. Where a sauce is used to hide the appearance there is no occasion to spend money on choice cuts.

Soup meat, tasteless as it is, may be nicely seasoned and made into pressed meat, hash or other dishes quite as good.

Meat left from beef tea should be saved for highly seasoned dishes. The water has drawn out the flavoring and the stimulating principles of the beef, but the fiber, which contains the greater part of the nourishment, is left undissolved.

After using all the ham that will slice nicely from the bone, chop the remainder for frizzled ham and put the bone in the soup pot.

An ordinary meat grinder will save money and hours of time, as it chops all kinds of food easily.

Fat from meats and soup stock should be carefully saved and clarified, and if carefully done no fat need be bought for general frying.

Tea leaves should be pressed tightly after they have been used and put away to use in sweeping the carpet. They both brighten the carpet and keep the dust from flying over the walls and furniture.

A little water in the wooden tubs will prevent them from falling to pieces.

Twine taken from bundles, if tied together and wound in a ball will always be ready when a string is wanted.

Fold pieces of manilla paper and put in the wall pocket on the pantry door. Use them for sifting flour and save time and dishes. A piece of paper makes a good moulding board when thickly dusted with flour.

Old tablecloths make fine tray cloths or strips for the table to save the cloth. They are nice for bread and cake cloths, to cover them after baking.

Put the scrubbing brush, vegetable brush and hairbrush bristle side down to dry, otherwise the water soaks into the brush and soon destroys it.

KEEPING CHEESE HARD TASK

It Should Be Kept Under a Glass or China Top All the Year Around.

Welsh rarebits, cheese souffles and other cheese dishes are convenient for summer, if cheese can be kept in condition.

This is so difficult that dealers refuse to sell certain cheeses during hot weather, while others spoil so quickly as to be unsafe to buy.

Where one lives within convenient distance of a store buy only enough cheese for immediate use, any loss is thus up to the dealer.

If living in the country, it is necessary to keep cheese on hand; though large supplies should not be laid in.

Cream and soft cheese in jars or tin-foil should be kept in the refrigerator until just before using. As the odor of the cheese quickly taints other foods it should be kept in a tightly covered glass or china bowl or jar. A large preserving jar with screw lid will hold several smaller jars of cheese.

Do not eat cheese in summer if there is the least green mould on it. Impress this upon maids, as some of them scrape it from the edges and serve the rest of the cheese in balls or squares.

Cheeses like Switzer, American or certain of the English and Swiss cheeses, should be kept under a glass or china top all the year round if brought in quantities. In warm weather it is well to wrap the cheese first in a clean piece of linen wrung out of vinegar.

Care of Brooms.

With the increased cost of brooms, the thrifty housewife wishes to preserve their usefulness as long as possible. Soak a new broom for several minutes in hot suds; this not only toughens but tightens the broom whisks. Then hang it up to dry. A broom, when not in use, should always be hung up. Cut a groove around the handle and tie a cord around it, leaving a loop for hanging, or use one of the patent fasteners which screw to a door. These may be bought for a few cents. The soaking process should be repeated every fortnight.

Another housewife washes her brooms in cold soap water, rinses thoroughly in cold water, snaps off all moisture possible and pressing the corns into shape places where they will dry slowly. All matting will also last longer when occasionally wiped up with salt and water.

Little Date Pudding.

One pound stoned dates, one-half pound suet, one cup flour, one-half cup sugar, one scant teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one cup soft bread crumbs, one cup milk, two eggs well beaten.

Put the suet and dates through the food chopper together. Sift in the flour, sugar, salt and spices, add the crumbs and mix all together thoroughly. Add the milk to the beaten eggs and mix again. Steam two hours in buttered individual molds. A pudding steamed in individual molds is easy to serve and attractive looking, although a suet pudding is more moist and really better when cooked in a larger mold, where there is plenty of room for expansion.

Chopped Piccalilli.

Chop one peck of green tomatoes fine. Sprinkle with one cup of table salt and let stand over night. Drain, add one quart of finely chopped green peppers, first removing the seeds; one quart of finely chopped onions and three cups of brown sugar. Put into a small cheesecloth bag one tablespoon of whole cloves and three tablespoons of broken cinnamon, one tablespoon of white allspice and four tablespoons of white mustard seed. Drop the spices into sufficient vinegar to cover the pickle and simmer several minutes, add the vegetables and cook slowly until tender. Remove the spice bag from the pickle before sealing in jars. Keep in a cool, dark place.

Sweet Apple Pickle.

Twelve pounds of sweet apples, pared and quartered, four pounds of sugar, one ounce of cinnamon bark, one-half ounce of cloves, one pint of vinegar. Put spices in a cloth, tie up, then boil vinegar, sugar and spices well; add apples and boil 20 minutes. Put apples in a jar, boil syrup until thick and pour over them. Simply delicious. Pears are also good prepared this way. Use winter sweet apples, also winter pears.

Feather Biscuits.

One pint of flour, two tablespoons of baking powder, a pinch of salt, one tablespoonful of lard, one tablespoonful of butter and a cup of sweet milk. Mix flour, salt and baking powder, rub in the lard and butter and moisten with the milk. Cut about half-inch thick and bake in a quick oven twenty minutes. They never fail.

Cheese Pudding.

Butter liberally the bottom and sides of an earthenware pudding bowl and place alternate layers of thinly sliced stale bread and fresh cheese. Season with salt and red pepper and add at the last a cup of milk and two beaten eggs. Bake for 30 minutes in a hot oven.

Fried Tomatoes.

Slice tomatoes about one-quarter inch thick, roll in flour, sprinkle with salt and pepper and fry until brown on both sides.

Hats for Mourning

THREE hats of excellent design are shown for those who are wearing mourning. It will be noticed that the shapes are small or moderate in size, that the designs are simple but the workmanship intricate and beautiful. These characteristics are what the wearer should look for when purchasing mourning millinery.

The first hat, a small round turban with rolling brim, is made of tiny folds of crape laid in parallel rows on circles about them or four inches in diameter. These are applied to the crown and brim which have previously been covered with crape laid on plain. The wire frame is covered and lined with silk and the hat is finished with a wired bow of taffeta. A rolled border of crape sometimes binds the edges of such bows and makes a very handsome finish for the ornament.

Fig. 2 shows a moderately large flat brimmed hat in which the underbrim is faced with chiffon and the upper brim and crown are of crape fitted to the shape wings made of folds of chiffon are used for trimming. They are even more effective when made of folds of crape in hats for first mourning. The veil of point de esprit, is bordered with crape and cabochons of the same are sewed to the wings.

No. 3 is a turban made of uncut velvet which is one of the richest materials used in mourning millinery. A soft crown and puffed rim are arranged by shirrings in the material. The role trimming is a full bunch of black fancy feathers in aigrette effect, at the right side. A net veil of fine Brussels is finished with a simple embroidery design in silk. Such veils bordered with a two-inch band of crape, or with three narrow crape fol's, are very elegant. Black lynx furs are worn and black suede gloves.

This new model is of tussah silk or drap de sole. It is trimmed in an original way with applique bands of the material and with straps of passementerie.

COMBINING LACE AND BEADING

Slight Carelessness or Lack of Preparation Sufficient to Mar the Result.

When lace and beading are to be sewed to thin materials, such as muslin dresses or underwear of any kind, it must be carefully and thoroughly done to produce good results. Lace edging nearly always has a stout thread in the selvage which serves admirably as a gathering thread. Pull this thread and stroke the gathers to make them even. Roll the edge of the material and, holding the lace and edge together with the thumb and forefinger of the left hand, with the lace nearest you, overcast the two together with firm even stitches. When sewed to a straight edge insertion can be sewed in exactly the same manner, but to let insertion in, to form a design, first baste the material on the right side to form the desired design, and hem it down on both edges. Cut the material from underneath the insertion, leaving a narrow strip on each side of the insertor. Crease this strip back from the insertion toward the material and turn as for a hem. Overhand this, taking stitches close to the line of the hemming.

FASHION EASY TO FOLLOW

Additions in Dress Accessories That Are Well Within the Reach of All.

There is a late fancy among some Parisian costumers for making the belts of the more elaborate gowns of a color in contrast to the whole color scheme of the garment.

This girdle, though differing in its tone, is of like material, and is merely a new touch—a little oddity—and more evident because of the attention bestowed on the waist line at present.

A dinner gown of sapphire blue, trimmed with crystal embroidery, is given an old rose girdle, and the combination could win its way anywhere, so knowing and artistic was the choice of shades.

Not in years has there been a season when small accessories could add so much to the general style of a costume as do the neck and wrist frills worn with the tailor-made suits of every color, design and material. Such frills may be developed of wide lace, plain or fancy net, chiffon, tulle and even sheer lawn. And the best feature of the fashion is that every woman may, if she wishes, be her own frill maker.

Chiffon, tulle and lawn are undeniably perishable, but then frills of these materials are inexpensive, if home-made, and quite as becoming as those of lace or net.

The art of fine needlework is more in favor now than it has been for many years past, and where children's frocks are concerned remnants of lawn, muslin, lace and embroidery that have been secured at reduced prices during the summer sales can be made up into fascinating little garments at a nominal cost.

To Hold Her Veil Tight.

One girl has conceived the idea of running narrow beading around the bottom and threading it with baby ribbon, which she pins at back. Both beading and ribbon are, of course, of the color of the veil, and fasten under the chin, so as to be inconspicuous. She finds this a solution of the veil problem with a low-necked blouse, as her veil never looks either untidy or bulky.

New Combinations.

The latest in color combinations is a dark red and a rather bright blue, so combined as to give the effect of the molish purple. This is very smart indeed, but be careful not to trim with either of these colors; black is the best, or some neutral shade.

USE KITCHEN SLATE

HOMELY MEMORANDUM OILS HOUSEHOLD MACHINERY.

Useful in Medium-Sized Family—Program for the Week Can Be Mapped Out and May Save You Many Worries.

The kitchen slate is a time saver. The family of two persons, in which one is downtown all day, may be run with the greatest economy of time, food and worry. The family of two is not a family at all in the true sense of the word which groups the old and the young and children in a household where management is a real problem. To manage the foods, the shelter, the work and the play of a household, say, of husband, wife and three children, requires considerable executive ability. The woman who can do it is a general in the field. If she can employ a helper who supplements her labor, so much the better; but the average family has difficulty in finding a helper, and the laundry, the baking and general cleaning is done by different persons and all but the latter out of the house.

The family kitchen slate serves its purpose to keep the machinery running regularly. A strong housewife may write it down in her memory, but how about those days when she is not at home, and when she is tired and her brain refuses to act? The program of the week's work should be mapped out on the slate, and odd notes of needs and marketing jotted on the other side. Just by glancing at the slate it will be known when to expect the laundryman, when an afternoon is free, when the fish man comes, etc.

The family of two has its puzzle in dispensing variety at the table and having nothing go to waste. The kitchen slate, gaining a bill of fare, will keep its possibilities before the eyes of the woman who likes a roast now and then, and feels life barren without a fowl. The cooking of "leftovers" is an extravagance of time and energy. There should not be any "leftovers" to any extent. Yet a roast will last more than a single meal and a can of corn or tomatoes is double portion for two hearty appetites. An executive mind will decide what shall follow the first meal, and figuring it all out on the slate will dismiss the details from her consideration.

Cream Puff Recipe.

Put a pint of water into a saucepan, bring to a boil, and stir into it a half-pound of butter. Bring again to the boiling point and beat in three-quarters of a pound of flour. Stir all the time, and boil until the mixture no longer sticks to the sides of the saucepan. This will take only a minute or two. Remove from the fire the moment this point is reached, and set away to cool. When cold, break into the mixture, one at a time, eight eggs, beating the batter for two minutes after each one is added. Set the batter in the ice until very cold, then drop by the great spoonful upon pans lined with waxed paper. Bake in a steady oven until puffed and colored a golden brown. When cold, cut a slit in the side of each puff and fill with whipped cream flavored to suit the taste. Sprinkle with sugar and serve.

Currant Sherbet.

Boil together two cupfuls of water and two cupfuls of sugar for ten minutes; skim, cool and add three cupfuls of currant juice and one heaping teaspoonful of powdered gelatine dissolved in one gill of boiling water. Turn into a freezer and when half frozen add the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, with three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Continue freezing until very firm, remove the dasher, pack and set aside for two hours before using.

Pears With Chestnuts.

Peel, core and stew half a dozen pears until tender, press through a sieve and sweeten with powdered sugar to taste. Season with the grated rind of a lemon, the juice of half a lemon and a pinch of mace. Add a cupful of boiled and chopped chestnuts. The large Italian chestnuts are the best for this purpose. Stir in the chestnuts, heap into a glass bowl and serve with whipped cream.

Pastry Information.

If women who make doughnuts and crullers would use a little less flour than the receipt calls for and stand the mixture on the ice before it is rolled out to get thoroughly chilled and stiff and then cut it and fry it quickly before it has time to soften, the cakes would be more delicate than when stirred stiff enough with flour to hold together when the paste is warm.

A Sauce for Broiled Fish.

Beat half a cupful of butter to a cream; then stir in slowly a tablespoonful of lemon juice and the same of minced parsley. Season with white pepper and when smooth and creamy set on ice until time for serving.

Peppers With Soft Shell Crabs.

Sweet green peppers cut in thin slices, omitting the fiery white lining and seeds, make an appetizing accompaniment for fried soft shell crabs. Dip the strips of pepper into salt and eat like celery.

WHERE RESPONSIBILITY RESTS.

Nearly three days have elapsed since the destruction of three pieces of property on one of the main business blocks of this city and up to this time, so far as can be learned, no effort has been made by the city administration to apprehend the guilty parties. Under the former law governing cities, when the city marshal was elected by the people, the mayor could often shift the blame for nonenforcement of law to the police department. But when the present law was enacted the appointing power was placed in the hands of the mayor for the express purpose of giving him entire control of the administration of the laws within the city. Under this arrangement, when the laws are not enforced the blame rests clearly with the mayor as the chief executive of the city and the official who has both the appointment and the control of the police department. The present mayor entered upon his term of office with the support of all law abiding citizens. In a short time he began to permit an open policy in the matter of liquor selling after the people by vote had declared that this should be "dry" territory. This policy of the mayor has been developed until the so-called "dry" joints have grown more and more open in their methods of business. Yet the mayor makes no effort to learn what is apparent to every observing citizen, and by so doing gives protection to the violation of laws which he took an oath of office to enforce. The violation of the liquor laws under the present wide-open policy has led naturally to the violation of other laws, culminating in the outbreak of Saturday night, and the destruction of property of lawabiding citizens. It is only another step until every citizen may feel at liberty to observe or break any law which he chooses, especially when he feels that the city administration will not prosecute him for law violation.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

THOSE PLEDGES MUST BE KEPT

It Is Said This Is Keynote of Marshall's Message.

STATE DOCUMENT COMPLETED

In the Message He Will Hand Down at the Convening of the Indiana General Assembly on Thursday It Is Understood That Governor Marshall Will Insist That the Majority Shall Keep Its Platform Promises.

Indianapolis, Jan. 3.—The message he will send to the legislature next Thursday has been completed by Governor Marshall, who, it is understood, will recommend strongly the enactment of laws to carry out every pledge made by the Democrats in their state platform. There is to be no equivocation on the temperance question, it is said, the governor being understood to stand squarely on the Democratic platform, favoring the substitution of the city, incorporated town and township as units, for the present county local option plan.

There has been an effort for more than two years to create the impression that Governor Marshall is not in favor of the position taken by his party in the last two campaigns on the local option question. Two years ago he asserted that if he did not believe in the Democratic plank he would not run on it. Last fall he was even stronger in voicing his views. The local option feature of the governor's message is understood to be one of the big features of it.

The State's Finances.

It is said the governor will demand of the Democrats that no platform pledge shall be overlooked. It is understood that he will be vigorous in his demands that there shall be no wasting of the state's finances. It is said he goes to considerable length to show why the legislature should adopt two appropriation bills, one for the ordinary running expenses of the state and the other providing for the specific appropriations. It is further understood that he will give the legislature a statement of the financial condition of the state, showing what the revenues will be during the next two years and urging the legislature to keep within them.

The legislative visitation committee will have its report ready for the opening of the session. It has followed the governor's lead and will make recommendations that can be met by the revenues the state will raise during the next two years.

The governor, it is said, will insist in his message that he is not attempting to dictate, but that he is merely recommending what he thinks ought to be done. Two years ago he urged the legislature to reorganize the state oil department by providing for only one deputy inspector for each congressional district and placing them on a straight salary basis.

It is said he will ask for a law giving the governor the authority to remove local authorities when it is shown beyond question that they are violating their oaths of office. The governor, it is declared, is not going to attempt to bring about any great reforms in any direction. He is going to ask for the enactment of laws to make interurban travel safer. He has conferred with the various departments, and it is said the message covers every branch of the state government and the Democratic platform thoroughly.

Twelve Platform Pledges.

The committee of Democratic representatives appointed at the recent conference of the members of the lower house to see to it that bills covering all of the Democratic platform pledges are introduced early in the session of the legislature will not prepare or introduce the various platform bills, but they will see to it that bills are introduced by Democratic members. The bills will be submitted to this committee before they are introduced and the committee will determine whether they are in line with the platform declarations, but this is as far as the work of the committee will extend. After their introduction the bills will be referred to committees and will take the regular course on the road to passage.

There are twelve of these platform declarations, as follows:

To change the unit of local option from county to township and city and township outside of city.

To provide for better maintenance of turnpikes.

To prevent child labor evils.

For better sanitary conditions in workshops.

For a weekly wage law.

To consolidate the offices of state factory inspector and state labor commissioner into one bureau to be known as the bureau of labor and inspection.

To provide for the appointment of the state mine inspector by the governor.

To shorten the hours of labor.

Co-employee's liability.

To require arbitration of all disputes between capital and labor.

To prevent competition of prison-made goods with goods made by free labor.

Registration of voters.

Not Yet at Work.

No word has yet been received at Washington ordering the employment of striking machinists according to the agreement which was to become operative Monday. After the Baltimore conference it was announced that the Washington strikers were to return to work the first of the year and a list of the available unemployed was sent in to the officials. The strikers who applied for work Monday were refused. It is feared that the trouble is not over and that the situation is muddled.

Various Township Finance Boards Receive Proposals According to Law.

In accordance to the provision of the public depository law the finance boards of the county, townships and city met Monday to receive proposals from the various banks as public depositories. The law requires that such boards shall meet the first Monday of each year.

The law further provides that all such banks or trust companies designated as depositories shall receive 2 per cent interest for all daily deposits, 2½ per cent for semi-annual deposits and 3 per cent for annual deposits. The finance board of Jackson township, composed of Dr. J. M. Shields, George Breitfield and Albert H. Ahlbrand, met Monday evening to consider the proposals filed by the three banking institutions in the township. Both of the National Banks and the Jackson County Loan & Trust Company were designated as depositories with the maximum amount to be deposited as follows: First National Bank, $2,000; Seymour National, 2,900; Jackson Co. Osteopathy

IS NATURE'S AID TO HEALTH AND APPEALS TO REASON.

It is not a cureall, but it adds years to the life and life to the years of chronic sufferers, who have tried other methods without success. If you are rheumatic, neuralgic, dyspeptic, paralytic, asthmatic, can't eat, can't sleep, all fagged out without exertion, fractious and fly to pieces, fear a nervous collapse, something is seriously clogging the wheels of life. The longer you try to work while the body machinery is out of gear, the greater will be the damage it suffers.

The Human Body a Working Machine.

No defective machine can turn out good work. Every day that an "unclean" watch, auto, or any other machine is compelled to run, wears seriously its vital parts and saps its vitality.

Man of today is as near a machine as he probably ever can become, and still exist. To keep him in perfect "running order" he has to be treated as such. Now, if your watch or auto had slipped a cog, or was "clogged up" with foreign matter threatening its very existence unless removed, would you apply acid or dope to rid it of foreign matter or to adjust its parts?

As With Auto and Watch

so with the human body; it gets out of running order through the process of life and needs repairing. It has been abundantly demonstrated in this community that health depends upon the human machine being kept in good mechanical order. Adjustment of the human body is the particular and special work of the SPAUNHURST OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIANS.

That they are expert body machinists, know what to do and how to correctly fix what is mechanically wrong with the body structure is evidenced by kindly expressions of those who have given their treatment a fair trial. Ask them about it.

A cinder gets in your eye, you poultice it and quell the inflammation, but the cinder will bring it back. Lift up the lid and remove the cause—the cinder—and the trouble will remedy itself. Just so it is when you are sick, before you can be well the cause must be found and removed. Which will you choose.

BRAKEMAN ON B. & O.

In Trouble at His Home in Bedford. Draws Jail Sentence.

Clifford Baum, twenty-six years old, a B. & O. S-W. east end brakeman, was in Bedford court Monday on a charge of malicious trespass and was fined $25 and costs and given a twenty-five days' jail sentence. Baum who lives in Bedford, is known to many Seymour railroad men through his service on the road. Saturday afternoon he was under the influence of liquor and going home became enraged because he found his wife preparing to attend a dance with their child. According to reports he drew his revolver and made threats that "he would end it all." Later he took a quantity of clothing belonging to his wife and child and slashed it to pieces with his knife. He also pulled his marriage certificate from the wall and after mutilating it threw it in the stove.

He then left the house and was captured that evening in the railroad yards. Upon being searched a bottle of carbolic acid was found in his pocket and it is thought he may have intended committing suicide after killing his wife. He told the officers that he could not use it then for what he intended.

Monday he feigned ignorance of Saturday's actions.

It was found later that he had been pawning various articles about town and it is claimed some of them belonged to his mother-in-law and others which would put him in the position of having to answer to larceny charges. It is thought Baum was insanely jealous of his wife. He says that he objected to his wife taking their little child to a dance.

COW STABLE COMFORTABLY ACCOMMODATES MANY HEAD

Structure Erected by Fred Pabst at Oconomowoc, Wis., Supplied With Extensive Ventilation System, Etc.

Pabst Cow Stable.

The cow stable erected upon the farm of Fred Pabst at Oconomowoc, Wis., is thirty-eight feet wide and 144 feet long and will comfortably accommodate fifty-four head of cattle exclusive of those which for any reason may be confined in the two large box stalls, says Homestead. The two rows of cows face toward a common feeding alley which is fourteen feet in width and which opens to the out-of-doors at either end of the barn through a large doorway. Back of each row of cows is a ten-foot manure alley which gives ample room for workmen. The barn is supplied with thirty-five windows, which admit abundant light, and an extensive ventilating system which continuously provides fresh air and withdraws the gases and other impurities. A wash room, fully equipped with the necessary appliances, enables the manager to enforce greater cleanliness than would be possible or practicable without this equipment. The feed room and the silos open into the feed alley, and are therefore conveniently situated for the feeder. The barn is modern throughout and is one of the very best models built in recent years in the West.

CAUSES OF HORSE COLIC

Farm Animal Will Thrive, Work
Better and Remain Healthier
If Given "Hard Feed" During Busy Season.

(By S. C. MILLER.)

When a farm horse is working hard it does not pay to let him eat grass when it is green. He will thrive, work better and remain healthier and more enduring if fed "hard feed" during the busy season. The soft, waxy, green grass is palatable of course, but it makes the horse soft and flabby, keeps the bowels too loose, and is apt to induce colic.

If the horse has no work to do he may go on pasture right along and have little grain and when his work is done in late summer he may enjoy the fall pasture made green again by rains. The pasture also is a good place for the brood mare as it promotes flow of milk.

We find that severe attacks of colic often are caused by allowing the hot, tired horse to eat grass at the road side when he has made a long trip to town.

The trouble, too, is prone to come on when horses are suddenly fed new hay or new oats. Both new hay and new oats should be fed in small quantities gradually at first, and along with old hay and oats until the horses become accustomed to the change.

Either the new feed is so palatable that the horse eats too much of it, or it contains some ferment that sets up indigestion and formation of gas.

Water very seldom causes colic. Nature intends horses to have all of it they want, at any and all times and so provided it does no harm. We may cause trouble by withholding drinking water for long periods of time and then forcing the hot, tired horses to drink too much of it at noon and especially just after eating grain. Allow the work horse adequate supplies of cool, pure water often when he is at work and he never will take too much of it or suffer ill effects from drinking. Indeed the water so given will be likely to prevent sickness and always is appreciated and beneficial.

The Best Rations for Hogs.

Recent experiments at the Missouri station prove that corn, good corn, is a good feed for any animal, and that there is no reason for withholding it from any animal needing food. At the same time, it is shown that corn alone is not nearly so good or so profitable a feed as corn supplemented by some protein food, such as tankage, linseed oil meal or soy beans.

In hogs fed exclusively on corn the animal becomes very fat and chubby, and does not develop properly; the bones are brittle and easily broken. Sixty-five hogs were used in this experiment, and they were divided into lots of five each. Twelve different rations were used, with corn alone in two of them, and corn supplemented with some other feed in the others.

The hogs fed on corn and linseed oil meal and those fed on corn and tankage gained the most; those receiving corn alone were most unsatisfactory.

Clover for Horses.

An experiment conducted at the Illinois experiment station in fattening horses for market showed that clover is worth twice as much as timothy, pound for pound, in putting flesh on the animals. It is the belief of the station that its value will be more highly appreciated as a horse feed when corn forms all or part of the grain ration than where all oats are fed. Clover hay, being rich in protein, renders it especially valuable for feeding young horses.

EVENERS AND SINGLE-TREES

There are differences of opinion regarding the correct arrangement of eveners and single-trees, and in particular the lines or reins. The latter depends much upon the temper of the horse. One farmer drives several horses abreast without the use of lines or whip, having trained them to go, back, and turn by queer sounding calls, writes I. G. Bayley in Popular Mechanics. Another farmer drives six horses abreast with a single pair of lines attached to the outside horses, the inside horses being connected with single straps.

The methods of harnessing up from one to six horses abreast are shown in the sketch, which has been approved by several farmers that have had several years of experience. The methods shown are for plows, scoops or road-scrappers. When connecting to wagons the only difference is in the design of the last evener, which has a hole in the center for connecting to the pole or tongue instead of the chain hook. Single-trees and eveners for wagons are usually made about one-third heavier than for plows, keeping the same lengths throughout. It will be observed by the arrangement given no horse is able to shirk his duty without being detected. In such a case, the evener will turn in favor of the horse working best, thus enabling the driver to spot the guilty one.

Watering the Horse.

As the work a horse does increases, the amount of water he requires increases as with an engine, if not in the same proportion. This is especially true in hot weather. The working horse needs large quantities of water, and needs it often. If it is not supplied it is absorbed from the body tissues; they shrink and the horse is said to get poor. Failure to give sufficient water is far more frequently the cause of farm horses getting poor during the working season than lack of feed. Horses suffer seriously from the usual practise of allowing them to go from one feeding period till the next in hot weather without water. A good rule is to water the first thing in the morning, then within two hours after each feed and the last thing in the evening.

A Godsend

By MARTHA McCULLOUGH-WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

The roses stood heavy with blossom—red, white, cream yellow and true rose pink. But they were not fairer than the girl who walked between them, stopping now and then to lay her cheek against some particularly perfect flower. Once or twice she made as though to pick a bud barely unfolding, but as often sprang back and put both hands childishly behind her, saying half aloud:

"Wicked one! Don't dare despoil the garden."

It was a strange garden—one she had strolled into by chance. Hence her scruples. They seemed fine drawn, looking at the multitude of roses. A dozen, a hundred even, would never be missed. And she craved them truly, but stifled the craving.

Turning a corner, she came into a long picketed alley, dim, cool and showing at the farther end. Half way its length there was a recessed opening with garden seats.

Emily Newton did not notice the opening until she came fully abreast of it—abreast also of a tall, thin man who lounged upon one of the seats. He was parchment colored and wore a small cap, which, added to lips drawn tightly over the teeth, gave him a sinister aspect. What wonder Emily gave a little cry at sight of him, starting back and saying hurriedly after the cry:

"I know I am a trespasser—but the gate was open—and I love roses so I had to come and look at them."

"I wish I could say you were quite welcome—but I, likewise, am a trespasser," the thin man said, half lifting his eyelids. "But I came in by way of the house," he went on. "Or rather—I came out of it in spite of them. You know the house—what sort is it?" he ended abruptly.

He fixed her with a keen narrow glance.

"I know nothing—being an absolute stranger. Indeed, until yesterday I had not heard that Glenmore was on the map," Emily said.

The man still looked at her hard. "So—you came to the village of your own accord," he said. "Singular! Most of us come—because we can't help it."

"You mean you are—" Emily began.

"Sent here—for the convenience of our friends or kinfolk," the man interrupted, nodding. "Because we are ill, or mad or bad—or out of normal kilter, almost any old way. The house is euphemistically a sanitarium. Actually it's a combination of mad-house and prison."

"Then—I had better run away while I can," Emily said with a nervous attempt at a smile.

The man who had risen laid a wasted hand upon her arm entreatingly: "Not yet! Not until I—Oh, where is that packet? I have carried it hopelessly this half-year at least."

He spoke, fumbling in the depths of hidden pockets, carefully contrived in a suit beautifully cut and finished, but worn threadbare. "If only I can find it—can trust you!" he panted. "I must trust you! It is not much to ask of a fellow creature—only to put something with your own hands into the right custody."

"I will do it—if I can," Emily said, moved to strange promising in spite of herself.

The man gave a faint, glad cry. "Here!" he said, breathlessly thrusting a thin packet into her hands. "Take that to my lawyer—his address is on the outside. He will know what to do as soon as he knows where to find me. Go—at once! Run! All may be lost if my keepers see you here."

Two days later, in the face of much dissuasion, Emily laid the packet in Lawyer Wilson's hands. The Tremors, whom she had come to visit, had been aghast over her encounter with the lunatic, and had advised most strongly against mixing in his affairs. But his eyes, rather than his words, won.

When she saw the lawyer's hand shake as he broke the seals, and noted the deepening frown with which he read the contents, she was more than glad the eyes had prevailed. As he laid down the close-written sheets he said to her reverently:

"You are a heroine. By your help, and God's, a deep and foul wrong shall be righted."

Emily rose, saying only, "I am glad."

Lawyer Wilson also rose. "You shall know all the story—some day," he said. "Take this thought away with you—your courage is to rescue a sane man, not only from living death but from actual death. His life stands between some bad people and that which is their hearts' desire. I—"

"Whatever you do—do it quickly." Emily implored. "He is almost at the end of resistance—I saw that at once."

Three years later Mrs. Emily Varian, just beginning to lighten her weeds, found herself in the streets of a strange city, rather badly lost and without a cent. Her pocket had been picked on the car which she had quitted at a wrong street, the address she was in search of had been in her purse but was out of her memory—all she knew certainly was that she must be miles away from her hotel.

Men and women went hurrying by, she stood looking at them, trying to summon courage to accost some one of them and ask help out of her predicament. The longer she hesitated the more impossible the thing became, she turned about and walked slowly backward, retracting the way according to her best recollection. But the streets were monotonously alike. Before she walked ten blocks she made a wrong turning. She was soon aware of the fact and faced about in desperation, resolved to speak to the first person she might encounter.

Almost as she turned a man loomed in her path, tall, fashionably clad, clean cut and evidently in a desperate hurry. He walked very fast with long vigorous strides. But as she began:

"Please tell me the way to—" he stopped short, changed color and caught both her hands.

"That voice. I know it. Dear lady I am not mad—no more than when you found me in a living grave."

"I don't know you, but am just as glad to find you," Emily said, with a little sigh of relief.

The man pulled out a card and held it to her saying: "I shall never forgive Wilson for not learning your name. If he had done it I should not have searched for you two years in vain."

Emily was staring at the card. It read: "John Warrender." The name told her the whole story—the newspapers had rung with the great Warrender case, in which a youthful step-mother and her paramour had conspired to imprison, perhaps murder slowly, the man at whose death the woman would inherit millions. Oddly enough she had never connected her protégée with the Warrender case. Now she looked up into the eyes shining gratefully down on her, and said with a slow, rather piteous smile:

"I am so glad you won out—as glad as I can be of anything—now."

A glance at her black gown told him the rest. He pressed her hand tenderly. "I am going to look out for you—always, my godsend," he said. "Truly, I think God sent you in my extremity."

Look out for her he did—doing all a brother might, or even a lover. But it was years before he dared name love to her—three years, full of the deepest, fondest devotion. Nothing less would have won Emily from the lover of her youth. "You are not to forget him—not for an hour," Warrender said after the first rapture of coming to an understanding. "We will honor him together as he deserves to be honored."

Loud Laughter Condemned.

The boisterous laughter is not always commended. "When a man of this sort," says Hartley Coleridge, gives play to his lungs, the winding up of a crazy church clock, the hysterics of a mastiff-bitch (the lamentations of a patient in hydrophobia, the Christmas psalmody of a coughing congregation—what are these to the long, dry see-saw of his horrible bray?" And Christopher North is even more emphatic, fond as he is of merriment.

"Let smiles mantle, and that sweet, soft low susurrus; let there be a many-voiced, quiet music like that of the moonlight sea when the stars are at its breast." But loud laughter he likens to blind-breakers on a blind coast. "Oh," he exclaims, "the atrocious wickedness of a great, big, hardy, huge, hulking horse laugh in an assemblage of ladies and gentlemen gathered gracefully together to enjoy the courtesies, the urbanities, and the humanities of cultivated life. The pagan who perpetrates it should be burnt alive, not by a slow fire—though that would be justice—but by a quick one, that all remnants of him and his enormity may be speedily extinguished!"

Waiting Their Turns.

"Poor tramps," ejaculated the sympathetic farmer as he fished out his leather purse, "here be a dime for each of you to get a shave."

"We are not tramps!" cried the unshaven group, with much indignation. "Then what are you doing with that week's growth of beard on your face?"

"We are summer boarders waiting our turn to get a whack at the shaving mirror. There is only one up at our boarding house."

Secret of His Popularity.

Mrs. Jingo—That new doctor is rapidly becoming popular with the society people. I understand?

Jingo—Of course, he is. He gives Latin and Greek names to headaches, colds and the like.

WOMEN'S HARDWORK

Labor of the "Weaker Sex" in Japan.

Task of Replenishing Coal Bunkers of Great Ocean Liners Is Done by Them With Celerity and Ease.

The "weaker sex" is not mentioned in Japan. There, the heavy work is shared by women, even the heavy work of loading great ships at Nagasaki.

This is a tremendous task. It is done largely by women who live at Kogakura, Fukuda, Shikini and in the many little villages that skirt the town. At daybreak they are to be met, rowing down to Nagasaki to take their full share in one of their country's most interesting national enterprises. The town owes its importance as a coaling station to the rich coal mines at Takashima and other surrounding districts, and lighters bring the coal alongside of the steamers.

Men and women stand shoulder to shoulder on barrels, baskets, boxes, or anything that will give them a foothold, and fill a long line of baskets, each containing about two buckets of coal. These are passed to the platforms hung on the side of the ship, on each of which a young girl stands. Sometimes there are five or six lines of platforms on either side of the steamer. These huge basketfuls of coal are passed to one girl, who in turn swings it up to the one above her, and so on along the line, with the swiftness and regularity of machinery.

As the girl at the top empties the coal down the chute she throws away the empty basket and with the same movements catches a full one. Above on the deck, sit the tallies, one for each line, and as every seventh basket is emptied the girl calls out "Oi," and he places a mark on a sheet. Twenty marks count as one ton, and it is estimated that 1,600 tons of coal is a good day's work for a fair-sized gang. The girls continue at this task uninterruptedly and merrily from early morning till mid afternoon, in the winter's cold and under the blazing summer sun, and at noon they have a short rest and eat their lunch of rice.

In one day a great ocean liner can be loaded with enough coal to carry her from Nagasaki to San Francisco.

This is a magnificent testimony to the strength and endurance of the industrial Japanese woman. A well-known traveler in Japan recently remarked: "I do not believe that there is another body of work folk in the world who could have performed the same task in the same time and with the same ease." The old order is changing with great rapidity, and under the new an important place is reserved for the Japanese woman in industry.

Long Honeymoon.

Sensible girls whose position when married will be a comfortable middle class one, will be well advised not to indulge in a long honeymoon. The ideal wedding tour should be short, quiet and inexpensive; it is foolish to tear hurriedly to rather hackneyed French or Swiss resorts merely to say, "Oh, we went on the continent."

There are many comfortable hostels in the quiet beauty spots where a young couple can enjoy each other's society undisturbed by the quizzing glances usually leveled at a nervous bride when she makes her appearance at a crowded table d'hôte, says Home Notes.

A wise bishop said: "As to long honeymoons . . . they are a waste of money at a moment when every shilling is wanted for much more pressing objects; they are a loss of time, which soon comes to be dreary and weary. Six days, by all means, and then, oh, happy friends, go straight home; and the sooner you are at home the sooner you will find out what married happiness means."

Carnegie's Inspiration.

The old handloom weavers of Dunfermline, to the number of over 200, had their annual drive recently, the expense of which was generously defrayed by wealthy sons of former weavers. A letter from Mr. Andrew Carnegie was read, dated from Skibo Castle, in which he said: "I regret I cannot leave Skibo, but wish to send my greetings to the auld weavers, of whom I have the right to claim being one by descent. After retirement from business, and while considering deeply what my next move would be, I noticed in the Scientific American these words: 'The gods send thread for a web begun,' and thereupon I resolved to begin a web. I took the first step in the distribution of wealth, and I assure you that I have found the truth of the proverb. The gods do send thread for a web begun."

Her Opportunity.

"What!" exclaimed her husband in surprise. "You don't mean to tell me you are going downtown on a shopping expedition in all this rain?"

"Why, of course I am," replied his wife. "For nearly six weeks I've been saving up money for a rainy day."

Out of Reach.

"John, that's a love of a hat!" "So it is, dear." "It would look beautiful on me?" "So it would, dear." "It would cause a furore, dear!" "Yes, and it would cause my books at the bank to be examined, too."

CONTINUING THE TROUBLE

Mr. Nag—The trouble with too many people in this world is that they don't know enough to quit when they are ahead of the game.

Mrs. Nag—I know it. I ought to have quit when I got your engagement ring, but I went ahead and married you.

VERY BRILLIANT.

Mrs. Beetle—That will be a very brilliant wedding of Mr. Koach's daughter.

Mr. Beetle—I suppose so. Mrs. Beetle—Yes, all the fireflies in the neighborhood are invited.

SOMEWHAT DIFFERENT

Friend—Why, I wasn't aware that Clever ever played cards. Victim—He doesn't. He works them.

THAT WASN'T ONE

Tom—This monkey knows as much as I do.

Tess—Why don't you pay the poor thing a real compliment?

HOLDING HER DOWN TO EARTH

Mrs. Uptown—How do you manage to keep your cook so long? Mrs. Westside—We hid the kerosene.

LORIMER'S SEAT TO BE VACATED

If Confidence of His Opponents Is Justified.

SAY THEY HAVE THE VOTES

It is Now Asserted Among the Senators Who Have Been Looking Into the Case That They Will Be Able to Command a Sufficient Number of Votes to Declare Title to Seat Invalid—Attitude of Indiana Senators.

Washington, Jan. 3.—That they will be able to command a sufficient number of votes to declare his title to his seat invalid, the opponents of William Lorimer are feeling very confident. One of the Republican senators who will be heard in opposition to the report of the committee and who has been making a careful study of the record of the case, declares that he has found ten votes out of the 108 cast for Lorimer in the assembly to be tainted. This senator predicts that the vote will come on a motion to declare Mr. Lorimer's title to his seat invalid. It will require simply a majority to pass this resolution, whereas to expel a senator would require two-thirds of the senate.

Senator Shively of Indiana, one of the leaders on the Democratic side, has let it be known that he is opposed to Lorimer. He has not yet made a canvass of the Democratic senators, but believes that it is likely that Senator Lorimer will be ousted if the question of his right to his seat ever comes to a vote.

Senator Beveridge, a member of the senate committee on privileges and elections, is still at work on the case, and declines to say what his attitude will be, but the Republican insurgent senators all understand that he will oppose Lorimer and believe he will submit a minority report.

LOOKING INTO IT

Mysterious Poisoning Case Has the Authorities Guessing.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 3.—State's Attorney Robb is investigating the mysterious Ellosser-Twigg poisoning case. Mr. and Mrs. Ellosser, the parents of the girl, are indignant that insinuations are abroad reflecting on their daughter May, a sister of the dead girl. The report is that Twigg first paid attention to May Ellosser, then shifted to Grace. The family denies that ill-feeling existed between the sisters. Coroner Beall said persistent reports about May Ellosser's relations with Grace may result in her arrest.

The poison that killed the pair is so deadly that a drop or two placed on chewing gum would do the work. Twigg had chewing gum in his mouth. State's Attorney Robb is working on a murder theory.

RIDING ON PILOT

And When Head-On Smash Occurred These Six Men Were Killed.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 3.—A wild train of coal cars and an accommodation passenger train collided on the Millersville branch of the Chesapeake & Ohio, killing six men. The men were riding on the pilot of the engine and the train was turning a sharp curve, when it met the loose cars and there was not time for the men to jump, all being caught unawares and crushed to death. The dead are William Akers, brakeman, Cattlettsburg; John Worley, conductor, Louisville; L. E. Vinson, F. U. Fugate and Lemuel Mills, Van Lear, and L. A. Smeltzer, Ironton, O.

Nitroglycerine Thawed Out.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 3.—Elbert Winsted and Samuel Spry were killed and Mrs. Elbert Winsted, mother of Elbert, was fatally injured at Irvine when a can of nitroglycerin they had placed near a fire in the home of Clay Winsted exploded. The house was blown to pieces.

A Big Job of Handshaking.

Washington, Jan. 3.—At President Taft's second New Year's reception yesterday exactly 5,625 persons filed past the president and Mrs. Taft in the two hours and a half. This beats the record of last year by fifty.

After knocking out a guard, five desperate "hold up" men escaped from the Atlanta jail.

WALTER BROOKINS

Daring Lad Not Deterred by Fate of Flying Companion.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 3.—The English aviator, James Radley, speed king of the aviation meet which closed last evening, narrowly escaped a fate like Hoxsey's when a gust of wind which struck the right wing of his Bleriot monoplane tilted it to a dangerous angle. Only Radley's alertness, the result of a warning to be careful at that point, averted an accident. He succeeded in righting his machine and making a safe landing. As he climbed out he said it was the closest call he had experienced.

Hubert Latham was host to several society women who are aviation enthusiasts. Countess De Swirsky, the Russian dancer, was taken up, and then Mrs. William Bayly, Jr., and Miss Bernard tested the delights of aviation. These were the first women passengers Latham has carried during the meet here.

During the closing hour of the meet nearly all the machines were in the air. Parmelee and Brookins, with the memory of Hoxsey still vivid, gave farewell thrills, including the spiral dip and ocean wave.

TO STOCK THE HOTEL ROOMS WITH BIBLES

Indiana Gideons Introducing the Word to Travelers.

Indianapolis, Jan. 3.—As the result of the state meeting of Gideons the Indianapolis hotels will soon be furnished with a large supply of Bibles, one for each guest room. The Gideons form an organization of traveling men and its main object is to spread religion among men of that profession. When the big supply of Bibles is obtained, the Indiana Gideons will form a parade in Indianapolis and will march from hotel to hotel with the books.

James Martin of Elkhart, president of the Gideons, who is familiarly known by traveling men as Cornstalk Jim, has already obtained permission from the managers to place Bibles in the rooms.

Business Men Won Out.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 3.—At yesterday's election the commission form of government was chosen by a majority of 700. The vote was 3,790 for and 3,090 against. The brewery interests opposed the plan. A non-partisan organization composed of business men, principally members of the chamber of commerce, led in the fight for the commission plan.

Wiped Out a Township.

Bedford, Ind., Jan. 3.—Flinn township has passed out of existence, being annexed to other townships, and the former officials of that township are now left without offices. The wiping of this township from the map ends a long and bitter political strife.

Violated His Trust.

Michigan City, Ind., Jan. 3.—Charles Fike, a trusty cabman at the state prison, escaped after taking the prison trustees to the depot. Fike was sent up from Indianapolis fifteen months ago for two to fourteen years for assault with intent to kill.

Identified as Connorsville Man.

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 3.—The body of a man murdered in a thicket near Rantoul was identified as that of Edward Fields, Connorsville, Ind. The victim was last seen alive with two men at the Rantoul hotel Nov. 9.

Sweeping Investigation Ordered.

Sterling Ill., Jan. 3.—Sweeping investigation of gambling and gambling devices is to be made by the White-side county grand jury. Several hundred witnesses from nine towns in the county have been summoned.

Chase S. Osborne, well known as an author of books of travel, has been sworn in as the twenty-ninth governor of Michigan.

Oscar Bell, Bloomington, Ind., says: "I have been bothered greatly with my kidneys and I would have suffered a complete breakdown had it not been for Foley Kidney Pills. My back pained me terribly with sharp shooting thrusts, my kidneys acted much too freely and I had headaches with dizziness and tired feelings in the morning. Foley Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and I started right in with them. I was gratified with the quick results. They eased my backache and before many weeks I felt like a different man. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me and I gladly recommend their use." A. J. Pellens.

A WEAK WOMAN AND HER STORY

In Floral, Ark., Lives a Lady Who Feels That Her Strength Was Restored by Cardui.

Floral, Ark.—"I must speak a good word for Cardui," writes Mrs. Viola Baker, of this place.

"About a month ago I was in very bad health. I was so weak and nervous that I was not able to do my housework."

"My husband bought me one bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic. I took it according to directions and now I am in good health."

"I think Cardui is a fine tonic for weak women."

Thousands, like you, have written to tell of the wonderful benefit Cardui has been to them.

Cardui contains no minerals, or other powerful drugs. It contains no glycerin or other mawkish-tasting ingredients.

It is just a pure, natural extract, of natural vegetable herbs, that have been found to regulate the woman's functions and strengthen the female system.

All druggists sell Cardui.
See yours about it.
